To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

Wales United Kingdom

Wrexham, England. The writer emphasizes the wrongness of the Evangelical Alliance in respect to antislavery feeling. The enthusiasm with which George Thompson, Garrison, and F. Douglass were received has proved that "the Evangelical Alliance is not the British Public." These three were entertained in the writer's little town; the meeting was "the best ever held in our town." Douglass "has been working wonders." The writer is enthusiastic about Garrison, and praises George Thompson, who "has had to expose some who were his dearest friends." The writer hopes to meet H.C. Wright next week.

Georgetown, Demerara, British Guiana. The writer, having left New England suddenly, has not abandoned the field, but intends to write. His aim is "a total revolution in the whole system of philosophy relative to man considered as an intellectual & active being." The writer wants to apply to the study of man's nature the same inductive method that has been successfully used in "natural philosophy." Relates how the difficulties encountered in his studies and the disappointment "at the scandalous misbehaviour of my temperance people whom I had enlisted into a party" brought about an attack of low spirits. But the "curative effect" of the climate here has exceeded his expectations, and he has resumed his scientific work Gives the titles of the eight treatises in which the writer's philosophy of human nature is to set forth. Meanwhile the writer is collecting facts on the results of emancipation in the West Indies. Believes that those free colored people in the United States who are skilled in agriculture or mechanic arts, or who have some capital would benefit greatly from emigrating to Jamaica, Trinidad or Guiana. "It is probable that this colony will shortly appropriate a considerable sum of money to pay the expense of immigrants to Guiana."

Demerara, ~~British Guiana~~. Before leaving Boston, the writer deposited with J. A. Collins the stereotype plates of his books, Archie Moore and Despotism in America, to be printed and sold by the Mass. Anti-Slavery Society. Collins sold only seventy copies in one year. The writer, however, has 150 copies of Archie Moore, previously printed, which he would like to have distributed among the slaveholding members of Congress. The climate of Demerara suits the writer, although he has been ill several weeks. The writer has sent to Mr. Wheeler a part of his work, Rudiments of the Inductive Science of Man, suggesting that it be handed to the addressee. Discusses his theory of progress and race. Has sent the addressee a report on the laboring population of this colony, containing

Bristol (England). Gives an admiring account of Miss (Sarah Parker) Remond's lecture. The writer, with evident strong anti-slavery convictions, excuses his lack of activity in anti-slavery movements, stating that he has worked in the fields of education, temperance, and the treatment of criminals. The writer also confesses that such meetings, as the one at which Miss Remond spoke, excite him so much as to incapacitate him. At this meeting the writer repeated what he had understood from the addressee - that the poet Longfellow had "struck out from his collection of poems every passage relating to slavery for an edition published to circulate

No. 123

To Mrs. Maria (Weston) Chapman

«Plymouth, Pa.» At the suggestion of Abby Kelley, the writer requests the addressee to urge Wendell Phillips and Edmund Quincy to attend the convention in Philadelphia on December 23d. If Thomas Earle will "advocate his peculiar views," those versed in the "non-voting" theory will be needed to answer him. The writer expatiates on the wrongness and effect of Earle's views. "There is not probably another place in the U.S. so favorable to the Dissolution question as this." The influence of the Covenanters and Friends has prepared the way for the discussion. "Our reception in Pennsylvania was truly gratifying." Dr. Bartholomew Fussell is journeying with the writer (and Abby [redacted]). Most of the antislavery in this region is among the [redacted] White Quakers.

«Salem, Ohio» The writer announces that she has written an article for the Liberty Bell on the other half of the sheet. "Our cause is making rapid progress in this state." One half of the Executive Committee of the Ohio (Anti-Slavery) Society have resigned and "now occupy the true Disunion ground." A letter from Abby Kelley contains 67 new subscribers and nearly $200 in pledges obtained in the lower part of the state. Abby Kelley and S. S. Foster have now gone to the meeting of the Indiana State Anti-Slavery Society. B. S. Jones and the writer hold meetings every week in the surrounding country, and attend to the Anti-Slavery Bugle between times. Thinks it would be highly inexpedient to leave the state this winter.
